CDC has very clear guidelines around this. Go to their website and u will see. N95 to N 100 or P95 to P100 masks are all fine. 3M is 1 of their manufacturers. They also list product codes. It is particles that u want out & u use protective googles or buy full mask

Actually, not all N95 mask is effective against viral infection. See attached chart. Most people I know are buying the wrong N95 masks the last few days, since the industrial/occupational ones are much easier to get.

I was able to order some from ebay. Fingers crossed that they actually deliver. Best keyword to use on ebay = "ASTM Level Mask". Good luck.

95 Surgical masks are primarily made to keep particles breathed out by the wearer. Respirators, on the other hand, protect the wearer against potentially hazardous particles.. industrial N95 masks are better for protecting yourself from hazardous particles

So no, people are not wasting money, they are buying the correct N95 rated masks for protecting themselves.

These are all better than what the Chinese are wearing. I would not call that a waste of money at all.

But some protection is better than none in the worse case scenario that you can't find the correct medical mask.
